"The Ottawa Spotlight"

(Weekly Review of National Affairs)
— By Spectator —

Ottawa, May 9th— Since the return of the Prime Minister from his short vacation in the South, cabinet meetings are being held to complete the legislative program which the government will introduce in the coming session. There are other questions in regard to Parliament which have to be settled. One for example is— who will be the next speakers of the Commons and Senate? Will the same two remain for the first session at least, Mr Pierre Jacques Lagrain (recently made a Privy Councillor) in the Commons and Mr Foster in the Senate? These are matters of parliamentary organization, and are decided at the beginning of each new parliament. The portfolio of Secretary of State left vacant by the death of Hon. Fernand Rinfret, will probably be filled before parliament opens and the suggestion is advanced that Col. Vien, member for Outremont may be selected. Mr MacKenzie King, again at his office in the East Block of the Parliament Building seems rested and refreshed in body and spirit by his visit to Virginia. Mr Lapointe, Minister of Justice, is still confined to hospital here, but his condition is not at all serious and when Parliament meets he will again be at the side of his chief in the front row of the Commons. He has been a member since 1904, that is for 36 years, and this Session his son, Hugues Lapointe, elected for Lotbiniere in the last election, will also take his place on the floor of the House. Dr Manion, Conservative leader, will not be in Parliament as he has no seat but teh belief grows that he will not resign the leadership, and will contest some seat, possibly Carleton County, after the Session. Mr Herridge, leader of New Democracy, will also be absent from the house, as he too was defeated in the last election, but he insists that he has "just begun to fight", and will continue to advocate national service with all the power at his command as the only salvation for the country in this emergency.

War Will Dominate Parliamentary Discussion—

War will dominate the proceedings of this Session, whether the Session is long or short. The Norwegian campaign affording proof of how formidable the enemy of,the allies really is, will add to the seriousness of parliamentary discussions, whilh will cover the whole range of Canada's military and economic contribution to the cause. There will be matters of domestic concern before the House, unemployment insurance and thereport on Dominion-Provincial Relations for example, but the conservation of the country's financial resources to ensure the most effective prosecution of the war will be a matter of major concern. Undoubtedly to the full extent that the public interest will sanction, the economic effort with the difficulties under which trade labors under war conditions, will be explained and discussed. Mr Rogers, Minister of National Defence, will be back from the war centre in Europe and his explanation of the way this country can make its most effective contribution to the cooperative effort of the allies will be followed with the keenest interest.

Regulations Affecting Foreign Exchange—

A measure has been taken by the Finance Department to help in the consolidation of the country's financial front. By an order-in-council the gold and foreign exchange reserves of the Bank of Canada have been transferred to the exchange fund under the control of the Foreign Exchange Control Board. With certain exemptions, all foreign exchange holdings of residents of Canada must be sold to the government before the end of the current month. The rate at which the purchase is will be made will be the official rate of May first. Similar action to that now taken by the Canadian government was put into effect in Britain at the opening of the war. It is obvious that with the growing demands of war, it is most important to conserve all available resorces of foreign exchange. Purchases of war materials have to be made in foreign contries. Canada has to buy much raw material as well as finished products from the United States. The new set up will aid in maintaining the value of the Canadian dollar. Sometimes flurries in value might occurr through ignorance and resultant momentary panic. The existence of the large reserves of gold and foreign exchange will help this.

Efficiency of Mechanized Transport—

Demonstrations were recently given at Rockliffe, near Ottawa, of the efficiency of Canada's motor transport. Machines were put through most exacting tests. The importance of mechanized transport has been altogether shown in this war and it was gratifying to learn that Canada's low wheel drive tractors are unexcelled in the world. it is said these tractors can be supplied by Canada to Australia and India. Soon 7,000 units will be complete in this country.

In spite of the persistent rumors that have cropped up that Canadians have been in the Norwegian campaign, there seems to be no truth whatever in the report that any Canadian unit has been in Norway. The authorities have explicitly denied the truth of these rumors.

REV. V. M. GILBERT INVITED TO MACLEOD

Rev. V. M. Gilbert who has been pastor of United Church for the Strathmore circuit for the past five years has received and accepted an invitation from the Board and Congregation of Macleod and Granum churches to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of their present pastor, Rev. Albert E. Larke. Mr Larke has been appointed Chaplain at Currie Barracks, Calgary, hence his resignation. Mr Gilbert and family will go to Macleod at the end of June.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Dr and Mrs S. J. Byers announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elisabeth, to Rev. Leslie Trayer Holt Pearson, son of Mr and Mrs David Pearson of Bashaw. The wedding will take place in Calgary in mid-June.

Of interest in both southern and northern Alberta is the announcement of the engagement of Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Dr and Mrs S. J. Byers of Ponoka, to Rev. Leslie Trayer Holt Peason, son of Mr and Mrs David Pearson of Bashaw.

Mr Pearson, a graduate of the University of British Columbia in arts and of the B. C. Anglican Theological college, is rector of St. Michael's and All Angels' Anglican church at Strathmore. His fiancee has been for the past two years a member of the staff of the Royal Alexandra hospital.

Mid-June is the time chosen for the wedding, which will take place in Calgary. Mr Pearson and his bride will make their home at Strathmore.

Scout Notes

SPECIAL MEETING FOR BOY SCOUTS

Field Secretary Ralph Johnston and Stuart Harris, Cubmaster, 12th Calgary Pack were present Monday night, and held the close interest of the boys, with their games and talk.

Mr Johnston in addressing the boys, urged them to take a full time interest in Scout work. To realize that they are not just a small isolated group here in Strathmore, but that they are a part of 9000 Scouts in Alberta, 100,000 in Canada in Canada, 1,000,000 in United States and 3,000,000 throughout the world. He demonstrated some special knot tying, and told of activities undertaken by other Scouts.

It is an excellent training and every boy should be proud of the badge he has earned.

The Five Hundredth Anniversary Of Printing

The World's Greatest Invention

Five hundred years ago, the inhabitants of the town of Strasbourg, Germany probably had no idea that from that town would come what is handed down to us as the greatest invention of modern times, and probably the most far-reaching of all time, that of printing, with all its endless implications. For that matter, after they had seen the invention, they probably had little idea of its possibilities, and the uses and adaptations which would be found for it.

The fortieth year of each century, however, has been set aside by the graphic arts in which to give recognition to Johannes Gutenberg, the man to whom we attribute the invention of printing from movable types. The word "attribute" is used advisadly: facts are something that are few and far between in the story of the life of Gutenberg or of the development of typesmovable, and the best we have to go on are strong suppositions and probabilities.

"Did Gutenberg wear a beard?" asks Paper on Parade, and the question is not light or irrelevant, but most indicative of the answer we may expect to all questions concerning him. Most modern day pictures, indeed, show him carrying a well-cultivated, and much-cared-for beard, one which might have been the pride and joy of any respectable citizen; and yet it is probable that Gutenberg was clean-shaven. He belonged to the Rhenish aristocracy, who, during the fifteenth century, went beardless. It is reasonable, therefore, to suppse that he likewise, attained this majestic growth sometime after his death, and in the mind of some imaginative artist.

In order to give credit where it is due, we must also mention that printing from movable types had been done long before the fifteenth century in China, but the invention did not take root there, and spread nothing, so that it had no influence on the world at large, as did Gutenberg's.

Great men all through the centuries since, have recognized the importance of this invention, and have given it much credit. It is so common in these days that we scarce stop to think of it, but still . . . Hugo looked upon it as "the greatest event of history" . . . . Carlyle claimed that "he who first shortened the labor of copyists by device of Movable Types was disbanding hired armies and cashiering most Kings and Senates and creating a whole new Democratic world. He had invented the Art of Printing."

Gutenberg was the son of Frelle zum Gensfleisch and his wife Elsgen Wyrich zu Gutenberg. According to the custom then prevailing, he used his mother's name, but there are many instances where he called himself Johann Gensfleisch. The Gensfleisch were an influential family in Mainz, one of the those who controlled the Mint of the City. But there was trouble with the tradesmen's guilds, and Johann left Mainz and moved to Strasbourg, where he set up as a metal worker. He was a skilled hand, and also a man of wealth, and he soon began to turn both to the discovery of some method of printing from typographic metal. Wood cuts, of course, were in some considerable use at this time, but chiefly for decoration and illustration. He had this to work on, but his invention was to be founded far more on his knowledge of metal than on the established principles of wood-printing.

In Strasbourg he established connections with goldsmiths merely for the purchase of metal and shop facilities, hired apprentices, form a partnership with a group of men of considerable means, and gave as the purpose of the venture, the manufacture of articles to be decorated with precious stones. From almost the first, he left their manufacture to the apprentices he had hired, and himself engaged almost exclusively in his experiments. For some time, he managed to keep these secret, but finally had to allow his partners in on his activities. They became wildly enthusiastic, and raised several hundreds of gilders even more, gaging their properties, and in some cases their inheritances. The partnership was a business like, well conducted affair, but like many others, had troubles. The first tools and press of sorts were stored in Andrew Dritzehn's home, and his brothers, feeling that here was something of unusual value, though not knowing what it might be, indulged in a little thievery. A lawsuit cropped up when one of the partners died, and his brother demanded that he be allowed to take his brother's place.

Gutenberg, however, kept at his experiments, and made the first attempts at printing, with constant experiment and constant improvement. Gutenberg, like many other geniuses, considered only the furthering of his discovery; his partners, like many other partners considered only the production of work, and the resultant income.

Somewhere between 1444 and 1448, they produced a book of seventy-four pages. The book from which comes the world-famous "Fragment of the World Judgment"— the fragment which is today recognized as the earliest piece of printing now extant done from movable types.

Douglas McMurtrie says of this fragment, "The greatest honour we can attribute to the name of Gutenberg is to say that he produced that seventy-four page 'World Judgment' ten years or more before the appearance of the great Bible on which his fame has been founded."

With the production of this book, Gutenberg's fundamental principles had withstood a practical test, and proven themselves.

The consequence of this epochal achievement are self evident. The magnitude of the achievement itself, is not, however, so readily discernible. "Device of Movable Types" sounds simple enough. Reflect for a moment, however, on the effort the development of this device necessitated, and the discouraging, heartbreaking failure of futile experiments, which went on, year after year, seeming endless.

We should like the co-operation of all teachers in an endeavour to make this year's exhibits in Agricultural Classes more worth-while and more genuine. One way to help would be to point out to all children taking seeds furnished by the Dept. of Agriculture that they should exhibit some of the produce grown from the same.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTROL BOARD

OFFICIAL CARDS AT STRATHMORE STANDARD OFFICE

Merchants and others catering to the tourist trade who will accept United States currency will be permitted to display an official card provided by the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

The card, bearing the crest of the Dominion of Canada, will be available in two sizes— 11 x 14 inches and 5 1-2 x 7 inches. The larger card is suitable for window display. Both will carry the same legend— "United States currency is accepted here at the official premium set by the Foreign Exchange Control Board."

Alberta is expecting to do a large tourist Trade business this year. Let us give our visitors the happy feeling of giving them teh benefit of the Exchange in their favor.

Out Of The Ordinary

Next Sunday is Mother's Day and in the United Church this will be celebrated along with our annual Crocus Sunday. The morning worship at 10 o'clock has been withdrawn to unite with the Church School in celebrating Mother's Day. The order of worship issued by the Religious Education Council of Alberta will be used and the minister will give the address. In the evening, we expest to have a large display of crocuses and we are to have as speaker one of Alberta's most pleasing personalities in the pesson of Rev. Sarsons, Alberta.

Mr Hunt is a graduate in Arts of the University of Western Ontario at London and in theology of Victoria College, Toronto. He came to Alberta in 1921). For some years he was on the Champion charge and brought it up to self support. In 1930 he and Mrs Hunt went into the Peace River country where they served very acceptably. In 1937, they came to Crossfield. The work among the teen aged girls and boys and the young people grew so that it became necessary to put a one thousand dollar addition to the church. Under the leadership of Mrs Hunt a very strong choir has been built up. Mr Hunt is a candidate to fill the vacancy left on our field since Mr Gilbert accepted the invitation to become the United Church minister in Macleod.

Clever Concert Party

Sponsored By

Imperial Oil Limited

It was a very clever, very varied and fast moving programme that was given Wednesday evening by the "3-Star Entertainers" of Imperial Oil Ltd. The Hall was filled to capacity, many standing throughout the evening.

A marked Nationalistic atmosphere was given by the prominence given to our Flag, teh Union Jack and the red ties, white trousers and blue jackets of the orchestra, all carrying out the Imperial Oil colors, Red, White and Blue.

Mr Frank Anders, Master of Ceremonies set the tempo of the evening by his rivacious manner, and conduct of the entire programme.

The items contributed, comprised all types, serious, ludricous, humorous, classic, modern and old time, thus appealing to the various tastes, naturally found in so large an audience.

The musical selections were af a very high calibre; the smoth blending of the orchestra, the exquisite playing of teh pianist, the finished renditions of teh violin, trumpeter and claronet, the timely cadence of the drummer, the solos by Colin Bray and Miss Thora Mack, and the final trio were delightful.

The varied piano interpretations winding up with a very realistic impersation of Europe's Bad Man, Hitler was a clever feature among teh many.

Dancing numbers were cleverly executed.

Individual mention is impossible, but the hearty applause of the audience testified to the interest and enjoyment created by the very diversified and on the whole excellent entertainment.

Mr Anders spoke the thanks of the Imperial Oil Ltd. for generous patronage in teh past and bespoke a continuance of this.

On behalf of Mr J. W. Robison, Local Agent he thanked the people of Strathmore and community for their generous and continued purchases.

Mr Ray Melvin, District Supervisor was present, assisting in the various details necessary to the production of so large an undertaking

Mr Anders in his opening address explained that this year is the Diamond Anniversary of Imperial Oil Ltd in Canada, they having opened their first shop in Eastern Canada in 1880 and in Western Canada in 11881.

Mayor Hughes opened the program, bywelcoming on behalf of the audience this Concert Party to Strathmore. He spoke of the satisfactory service maintained by Imperial Oil Ltd. throughout their 60 years and bespoke for them a continued prosperous future.

Mrs Margaret Lyttle is confined to her bed suffering from a heavy cold. We hope she won't be bed fast for very long.

Miss Hettie Cocks who was taken suddenly ill one day last week, is very much better at the present.

Mrs A. C. Jensen, who had the misfortune to burn her arm quite badly, falling on a hot stove is now well on the way to recovery.

We are very glad to hear Mrs P. E. Sarsons is making such a splendid recovery from her recent operations. We hope ere long we shall have her back home once again.

Mr and Mrs A. M. Watson and family spent Saturday afternoon visiting in Calgary.

It will be awful lonesome when it stops raining for a whole day. Wish it could wait a little while 'till we get some seed in the ground. Won't be long before we are looking for a dark cloud with a little moisture in it— but not for a day or two (please).

CONTRIBUTIONS OF LOCAL RED CROSS

On May 3rd the following Knitted Articles were sent to the Provincial Branch of the Red Cross Society at Calgary.— 17 Pairs of Seamen Socks, 6 Pairs of Day Socks, 5 Sweaters, 4 Quebec Helmets, 4 Balaclava Cap Helmets, 1 Pair Mitts, 1 Air Force Blue Scarf.

We are pleased t report extract from letter received on acknowledging previous shipment of April 20th by the Provincial Branch— "This is a very fine shipment and we wish to thank your workers most sincerely."

Mrs A. P. Gray would also like to thank all workers for their help, as there are quite a few Knitters whom she hasn't the opportunity of personally thanking for their most generous help and excellent work.

IN THE COMMUNITY. . . .

Opinions expressed in these articles are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Standard.

THE SCHOOL AND THE COMMUNITY

THE HUMAN ELEMENT

Should we as educators aim at filling the mind with knowledge which has direct practical utility, or should we try to give our pupils mental possessions which are good on their own account It is useful to know that there are twelve inches in a foot, and three feet in a yard, but this knowledge has no intrinsic value; to those who live where the metric system is in use, it is utterly useless. To appreciate "Hamlet" on the other hand, will not be much use in practical life, except in those rare cases where a man is called upon to kill his uncle; but it gives a man a mental possession which he would be sorry to be without, and makes him, in some sense, a more excellent human being.

Most modern well-to-do Englishmen and Americans, if they were transported by magic into the age of Elizabeth would wish themselves back in the modern world. The society of Shakespeare, Raleigh and Sir Philip Sydney, the exquisite music, the beauty of the architecture would not console them for the absence of bath-rooms, tea and coffee, motor cars, and other material comforts of which that age was ignorant. Such men tend to think that the main purpose of education is to increase the number and variety of commodities increased.

What will be the good of the conquest of leisure and health if no one remembers how to use them?

It is not difficult to make a healthy child happy, and most children will be healthy if their minds and bodies are properly tended. Happiness in children is absolutely necessary to the production of the best type of human beings.

The spontaneous wish to learn, which every normal child possesses, as shown in its efforts to walk and talk should be the driving force in education.

As has been suggested in former articles of this series one of the worst features of the old system was that a child was considered as an adult in the making. Childhood was a kind of necessary evil which must be tolerated. As soon as possible childish ways must give way to adult ways. The Progressive School maintains that a child is a being in his own right and that adult ways are for him anathema and positively bad.

These two diametrically opposed viewpoints can perhaps be more clearly understood by a word regarding the different types of teacher. There is the one whose whole philosophy is a series of "don'ts" unless he says "do." There is the one who looks on the child as something to be exhibited, as a puppy might be put through his tricks. Then we have the teacher who looks on the youngsters as laboratory specimens, kind of white rats. The teacher, in tune with modern practice, looks on the children as equals, who have their rights as children, and the only respect in which there is any difference between the teacher and the taught is that the teacher is more experienced. None other than the best type should be certificated as a teacher in a democratic society.

Setting of conditions which stimulate certain visible and tangible ways of acting is the first step. Making the child a sharer or partner in the associated activity so that he feels its success as his success, its failure as his failure, is the completing step.

The first office of the social organ we call the school is to provide a simplified environment. It selects the features which are fairly fundamental and capable of being responded to by the young. Then it establishes a progressive order, using the factors first acquired as means of gaining insight into what is more complicated. In the second place, it is the business of the school environment to eliminate as far as possible, the unworthy features of the existing environment. It establishes a purified medium of action. Selection aims not only at simplifying, but at weeding out what is undesirable. In the third place it is the business of the school environment to balance the various elements in the social environment and to see to it that each individual gets an opportunity to escape from the limitations of the social group in which he was born, and to come into living contact with a broader environment. Our schools must provide something like a homogeneous and balanced environment for the young.

We adults take an almost fiendish delight in censuring the young. Have not the young to make these two demands? (1)—I have the right to be well born, (2)—I have the right to be born into an environment suitable to my physical, mental and moral needs. In all sincerity are we not a trifle self-righteous in our criticism of childhood and youth.

What are the native attitudes of the normal child? Is he not active, frank, curious? We have miserably failed to take account of the instinctive, native powers of the young, we have failed to develop initiative in coping with novel situations and we have put undue emphasis on drill and other devices which secure nothing but automatic skill. In all cases the adult environment has been accepted as a standard for the child. We have forgotten that since life means growth, a living creature lives as truly and positively at one stage as at another, with the same intrinsic fullness and the same absolute claims.

To quote Emerson, "Respect the child. Be not two much his parent. Trespass not on his solitude. But I hear the outcry which replies to this suggestion; Would you verily throw up the reins of public and private discipline; could you leave the young child to the mad career of his own passions and whimsies, and call this anarchy a respect for the child's nature? I answer,— Respect the child, respect him to the end, but also respect yourself . . . . The two points in a boy's training are to keep his "naturel" and train off all but that; to keep his "naturel"; but stop off his uproar, fooling, and horseplay; keep his nature and arm it with knowledge in the very direction in which it points." This reverence for childhood and youth instead of opening up an easy path to the instructors, it involves at once immense claims on the time, the thought, and life of the teacher. The native curiosity of children is very near to the scientific spirit and yet how often we try to kill it and how often do we implant fears in its place, fears which later lead to neuroses.

"Unless ye become as little children ye shall in no wise enter the Kingdom of Heaven." The Progressive School instead of trying to make children like adults, would encourage the retention, matured it is true, of many child-like qualities in adults.

Are ye prepared? he asked,

Aye, said the shepherd. I got a grand ham, ye ken for dinner.

No, no, said the minister. I mean spiritually prepared?

Aye, aye, meenister. I got a quart frae the inn.

Dominion Parliament To Open May 16th

Thursday, May 16th, the Federal Parliament will assemble for what will be one of the most momentous sessions in the history of the Dominion.

In addition to legislation necessary to the requirements of a country of such size and vastly varying conditions, which in itself is a task of great magnitude— there are the overwhelming problems brought on by the prosecuting of the war. It will be a difficult session, and one that will tax the best-thought of the legislators. However there are "good men and tried" at the helm.

Pot Pourri

Wind-silvered willows hedge the stream
And all within is hushed and cool.
The water, in an endless dream,
Goes sliding down from pool to pool.
And every pool a sapphire is,
From shadowy deep to sunlit edge,
Jibboned around with irises,
And cleft with emerald spears of sedge.

O, every morn the winds are stilled,
The sunlight falls in amber bars,
O, every night the pools are filled
With silver bedes of shaken stars.
O, every morn the sparrow flings
His elfin trills athwart the hush,
And here unseen at eve there sings
One crystal—throated hermit-thrush.

"FIFTH COLUMN"

The expression "Fifth Column" has come into general use since the easy conquest of Denmark and the invasion of Norway; but its origin is perhaps not widely known.

So far as we are aware, it was first used during the struggle of the constitutional Government of Spain against General Franco and his Nazi and Fascist backers. It was used to describe the traitors to the constitutional authorities in Madrid, who constantly conspired to assist the enemy— by acts of sabotage and spying. The "Fifth Column" was ready to rise at any moment when the rebels might gain an advantage, and join in the armed attack on the Government forces.

Eventually (after assistance given to Franco by the British and French Governments, who denied to the Spanish republic its right under international law to import arms for its own defence against revolt, had enabled the Nazi-Fascist combination to bring the republic down), the "Fifth Column" came into its own. It played a leading role in bringing before Franco's firing squads many of the republic's defenders. — Farm Leader.

AN ODE TO "MONEY"— OR "FILTHY LUCRE"

"Dug from the mountain-side,
Washed in the glen;
Servant am I, or the master of men.
Steal me, I curse you,
Earn me, I bless you;
Grasp me or hoard me,
A friend shall possess you.
Lie for me, die for me,
Covet me, take me;
Angel or devil
I am what you make me."

MOTHERS AND MOTHERS' DAY

SUNDAY, MAY 12 the annual recurrence of Mother's Day will be celebrated, and many a kindly thought, word and deed will cheer the heart of her, who is—or should be Queen of the Home.

In the human world the term and place of Mother stands among those most cherished that is — if the mother is worthy of her sacred trust —. There are many fairly worthy Mothers — but none who in their quiet moments of reflection do not regret some hasty word or deed or some decision which was not impartially and judiciously thought out. There is no "calling" which requires more astute and capable understanding than that of faithfully and wisely filling teh place of Mother.

It requires sympathy, tact, patience, understanding humor, keen insight, self-sacrifice, a philosophical outlook that takes the long view— and above all love.

The tragedy exists where mothers are mothers in name only; who fail so far short in their great responsibility that the lack of right direction and guidance can never be overcome. Fortunately we feel these are in the minority.— A happy, healthy well-guided childhood should be the chief aim of every worthy mother.

LATE SEASON NO CAUSE FOR WORRY

WE ARE ASSURED by one of our pioneer farmers that the delay in getting on the land is no cause for long faces or anxiety.

He recalls sowing wheat May 6th, threshing that wheat Auguust 23rd, and garnering 33 bushels to the acre of No. 1 Wheat.

Now with the quickened speed in getting the land ready by tractors working day and night he feels the delay can be quickly overcome— and the moisture is all to the good. Here's hoping for a continuation of what seems now ideal crop conditions— and no hail, frost or blight to mar the yield.

THE 500TH ANNIVERSARY OF PRINTING

ly, before anything even pointing to success was assured.

Firstly he had to develop some way of producing metal type faces which would align, have an even top surface, form a rectangular block, and again be easily separable. He must develop some method of casting these faces, a steel casting mould and individual matrices for each typeface. This again meant developing a proper alloy. This turned out to be a carefully mixed blend of antimony, bismuth, lead and tin. The first two expand when passing from a liquid to a solid stage, and the latter two contract. He developed a method of making punches, or models and matrices, which took twenty years to perfect. It was a stroke of genius, which took the world five hundred years to improve upon. When he had his typefaces, he found he must develop a new ink . . . . the water colour inks used on the woodblocks were of no use to him. This material he developed by mixing linseed oil, and lampblack. Finally, before he could use anything he had so far developed, he must invent, or adapt a satisfactory form of press.

The Strasbourg partnership proved itself eminently successful. They produced copies of the "Donatus" Latin grammar, a best seller and an astronomical calendar. It was dissolved however, about 1447, and Gutenberg returned to his native Mainz, and there raised huge sums in order to extend his work. He then formed a partnership with Johann Fust. Fust was a capitalist, a hard-headed, shrewd business man, Gutenberg, a dreamer, ready to sign away anything, everything, if only he might advance his work. Peter Schoeffer, a magnificent craftsman, was brought into the workshop to design letters. He proved also to be a shrewd chap, for he soon married Fust's daughter, and much strengthened his position.

Gutenberg began preparing a production of Missals, the large, beautifully decorated volumes used in celebration of the Mass. His work included the preparation of three sizes of type, in fonts of elaborate characters, and beautiful, and intricate, two-colour initials. Fust found the business too long and discouraging. He wanted to see some results, so work was started on a Bible; one colour, one type, no ornamentation. Gutenberg, however, was forced out of the partnership by Fust's foreclosure, in 1454, and hence completed neither. The firm became Fust and Schoeffer, and in 1456 they brought out the "42-line Bible, (Gutenberg's Bible.") A year following this, came the great Psalter the crowning glory of the invention, and Fust and Schoeffer, were well on their way to becoming printers and publishers on a tremendous and lucrative plane.

Resultant from the fall of Constantinople, indulgences were being granted to all who would serve in the campaign against the Turks, and advantage was taken of the new method for producing these quickly and in quantity, so that Gutenberg was getting many orders for these.

The sack of Mainz the printers scurrying all over the continent in much the same way as the fall of Constantinople had dispersed the scholars. In the clash of two Archbishops for supremacy, Adolph sent the other, Dietrich, hastening down the Rhine in a rowboat. Three years later, Adolph gave Gutenberg a salaried post at court, but the aged and penurious old man was dead in a year or two. The fruits of his exacting and tremendous labours were garnered by others, and not only in his day and age, but in all succeeding generations down through the centuries.

Of his life itself, we have, in Dingelstedt's words; "a few vague shadows and an unknown tomb. . . ."

Art Hay brought this story back from Waukesha, and he says it is true:

A dealer in Waukesha went out with some of the boys during the stock show, and before he realized it, the morning of the next day had dawned.

He hesitated to call home and tell his wife. Finally he hit upon an idea. He phoned home and when his wife answered, he shouted: "Don't pay the ransom, I'm back!!"

FOREIGN EXCHANGE ACQUISITION ORDER

IMPORTANT NOTICE

As announced by the Minister of Finance, the Foreign Exchange Acquisition Order, 1940, has been enacted by Order-in-Council under the authority of the War Measures Act.

Unless exempted by the Order, every resident of Canada who, on May 1st, 1940, has any foreign currency in his possession, ownership or control, whether in Canada or outside Canada, is required forthwith to sell such foreign currency to an Authorized Dealer (i.e. a branch of a chartered bank) for payment in Canadian dollars at the official buying rate of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

"Foreign currency", for the purposes of the Order, means any currency (excluding coin) other than Canadian currency and includes bank notes, postal notes, money orders, cheques, travellers' cheques, prepaid letters of credit, bank drafts and other similar instruments payable in any currency other than Canadian currency, and also includes any amount in foreign currency of which a resident has a right to obtain payment by reason of a deposit, credit or balance of any kind at or with a bank, savings bank, trust company, loan company, stockbroker, investment dealer or other similar depository.

The Order does not require the sale of any foreign securities.

The Order does not affect any foreign currency, deposit or securities of any non-resident of Canada and for greater certainty the Order expressly declares that a non-resident visiting Canada for business or pleasure for a period or periods not exceeding six months in the year continues to be a non-resident for the purposes of the Order unless such person enters or has entered Canada with the intention of becoming a permanent resident.

No resident is required to sell any foreign currency if he satisfies the Foreign Exchange Control Board that he held such foreign currency on May 1st, 1940, solely as trustee or agent for a non-resident and that the non-resident's interest therein had not been acquired from a resident since September 15th, 1939, except in a manner approved by the Board.

Under certain conditions stipulated in Section 1 (b) of the Order, a resident who is not a Canadian citizen may be granted exemption, but only after application for exemption is approved by the Board.

No life insurance company incorporated in Canada is required by the Order to sell any foreign currency which it needs for the purpose of carrying on its business outside Canada.

Further particulars may be obtained from branches of chartered banks. Any resident who has any foreign currency in his possession, ownership or control on May 1st, 1940, regardless of amount, should consult his bank at once in order to ascertain the extent to which he is affected by the Order.

BETTER OIL

In the more powerful engines in today's cars, trucks and tractors, oil has to be tough to stand the punishment. The New Marvelube, developed in Imperial Oil research laboratories, is specially engineered for these faster, hotter-running engines of today.

Marvelube has long been a leader among motor oils. The New Marvelube retains all the original high qualities—now it also goes through new refining processes which make it even tougher, cleaner and more heat-resistant than before.

So the New Marvelube lasts longer. Your oil bills are lower.

Take advantage of the new savings this better oil brings. See your Imperial Oil agent about the New Marvelube.

WORLD'S GREATEST TRAVEL SYSTEM

The demands of our Country and Empire, occasioned by another Great War, cause us to pause and recount the progress made in the quarter-century since the beginning of the first Great War.

Then but 10,000,000 acres were sown to wheat in contrast to over 25,000,000 acres now; then we exported but 25,000,000 lbs. of bacon and ham to Great Britain in a year, whereas this year our shipments will total over 260,000,000 lbs. Then the average yearly production of a dairy cow was 4,500 lbs. of milk which now has been raised to 6,500 lbs.

Farmers have been alert to the findings of science and the better practices developed by our agricultural colleges and experimental farms. Changed methods have brought vast improvements; higher standards of products have been attained and maintained.

Science, too, applied by practical men of knowledge has, through the solving of many of our immediate problems, greatly increased the productivity of our farms and added immense sums to the farmers' yearly revenue.

Rust-resisting varieties of wheat have now ended the annual losses occurring from this perennial blight which is estimated to have cost the farmers of Western Canada in the 62 years of wheat growing, an amount in excess of half a billion dollars.

Grasshopper control efforts have been perfected to the point where the damage from these pests has been greatly curtailed, one authority placing the saving from this work at several hundreds of millions of bushels of grain in the last seven years.

And the agricultural implement engineer has been busy designing machines to meet the specific needs of the moment. Speed, less man-power, and lower costs of operation, have been the goal and as a result most machines have undergone great changes. Tractors have been tremendously improved. New machines have been made available. One-Way-Disc Seeders—till and sow in one operation, cutting the cost of these operations by 40% to 50%. The new Small Combines extend the use of this new low cost harvesting method to farms of all sizes—saving upwards of $1.60 per acre in harvesting costs.

Massey-Harris is proud to have played an important part in adding the contribution of the implement maker to those of the scientist and farmer in furthering the interests of agriculture.
